

Between the Stars

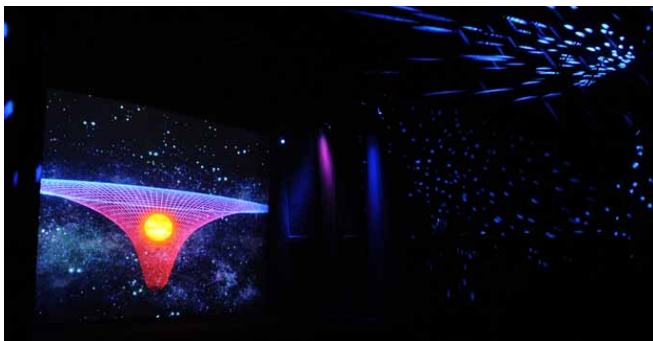

Object Theater (2010)
Science North, Sudbury, Ontario

Between the Stars is a multimedia object theater that makes the exciting but complex subject of dark matter comprehensible and entertaining for a family audience.

Dark matter, the strange “something” that makes up 85 percent of the matter in the universe, is a cosmic mystery, and to us that means a terrific story. To tell that story, abstract ideas take on vivid forms in Between the Stars.

The otherworldly, animated narrator Stringman leads the audience on a wild ride through time and space to the origins of the universe where the fundamental beauty of dark matter is revealed. Then he brings them plunging back to earth, into Sudbury’s SNOlab, where scientists are searching for cosmic whispers of this fundamental substance.

Between the Stars is a whimsical, 15-minute, special effects adventure that opens the mind and fills it with insight and wonder.
